Timelapse videography is becoming increasingly easy to create in the age of digital video. Overarching patterns of human movement can reveal truths and secrets hidden to standard impressions of time. What slows down when everything is sped up? What frenetic movement is present on a glacial scale? How can things that move so fast demonstrate a unique inner peace when viewed from a different speed? What are the defining patterns in the world of motion? T-MINUS is a compilation of movies by artists, engineers, and scientists all over the world attempting to explore these questions.
